Project Summary
Topic: Navigating the Intersection of Political Economy, Finance, and ESG Description: How does the evolving political landscape in the United States influence the decisions of financial institutions? How do their sustainability and ESG practices change as a result? In what ways do the special interests of asset management firms and other financial entities shape political outcomes? This project seeks to delve into these critical questions, building on prior research by Prof. Yegen to uncover empirical insights into the intricate relationships between political economy, finance, and environmental, social, and governance (ESG) criteria. We invite students passionate about exploring the political economy of finance, ESG issues, asset management, and corporate governance to collaborate on innovative research ideas. Whether you have your own concepts related to political economy of finance, ESG, asset management, corporate governance or wish to brainstorm with Prof. Yegen, this is an opportunity to contribute to a vital and timely discourse that can shape the future of finance and sustainability.
